Game Controls

Using your Atari 2600 controller, you press the "FIRE" button to launch a missile and hit the UFOs that appear in the center of your sights; you need to shoot them down before time runs out.

Players need a strategy for their attacks, as UFOs are treacherous and will trick you into wasting time and ammunition.

Tribute to the TV Program

Our programmer, XAN, sought to replicate the mechanics of the original TV show that inspired the game; in the original broadcast, viewers at home would call in and shout "Pow!" to fire their shots. While XAN programmed the game to fire using a controller button, he successfully brought the treacherous UFO movement from the TV show into this Atari 2600 version.

Olioni Games brings the original TV POWWW! program—which aired on TVs back in the day—to the Atari 2600 in a version that is as faithful as possible, allowing fans of the classic show to play it on the console.

Mr. Xan is an Atari 2600 programmer. He began programming on his YouTube channel, "Games and Programming," creating tutorials and teaching others. Thanks to his talent, he gained recognition on the AtariAge forums through Zeropage Homebrew. Consequently, Mr. Olioni decided to help the young programmer, offering him the opportunity to enter the market and sell his games on the Olioni Games Inc. website.
